With the week nearly gone, Barre chapter of the Red Cross is still short of the 800 garments necessary to complete Barre's quota of cast-off clothing for the Near East relief. The response has been gratifying, but more clothing is needed, especially women's and children's second-hand wearing apparel. The basement of the Aldrich Public Library is being used as a depot for assembling the supplies. Everything useful in the line of clothing is desired and the Red Cross strongly appeals to the people of Barre to give liberally of such apparel. It isn't a job that should be left to your neighbor. If all the clothing available in Barre for this cause should be donated, the quota would be many times over-subscribed. Barre chapter is anxious to tally the desired 800 garments by to-morrow night. To make this possible, people who have delayed in taking their contributions to the library basement are urged to do so to-day or to-morrow, if possible.
